“ Bonnie,
I am so sorry to learn of Uncle Alberts passing. He lived all his like to go to heaven. I also am sorry I can't be there as the doctor still doesn't want me to be in crowds. With love and prayers.

“ Only Uncle Albert would call close to midnight. I thought it would be a death message, but he would say he just wanted to talk. After 2 hours of just one more thing, I was left with a mixed appreciation of Uncle Albert. By the time he got done with your question, you no longer could remember what was asked. Uncle Albert loved to recount past events. Although I was most interested in his World War experiences, he never exploited that time in his life. Uncle Albert knew how to get information out of you, and you were left with oh not again moment. He always lived in fear of losing what was close to him.

Something he brought back from the war. Although he controlled more of my life than I wanted, my heart now has a much deeper shadow. Life will be more difficult without Uncle Albert, but I was fortunate to have had such a "Double Kin Uncle". I could always expect a call with a weather day such as that days snowfall, but the concerns of this world are left to us. He took the only thing he could take which was the Bible in his heart.

Love Always,
